Yesterday the Halesowen and Rowley Regis Times ran the following article: MADRAS (SEX) – Their four-week-old baby was enjoying a cuddle at home with her new mum, eating fish from a jar, until a white liquid burst through her tiny nose. Her new mum was then alarmed to discover the bottle of the baby's favourite drink was contaminated with faeces. After numerous investigations by health officials, the bottle was said to be “probably” contaminated by animal faeces. Police later found out that the bottle was bought from the same shop as the baby’s one-week-old bottle. The health officials are now looking for the shop where the contaminated bottle was bought and are investigating if there is a link to the death of a child who died from a bowel obstruction a week earlier at Upton Park in Rowley Regis. Local CID officers have gone through the inquest evidence of the death and say there is a “strong link” between the two deaths. Police are also asking for anyone who bought the baby’s bottle from the shop to contact them. Sue Wright, chief inspector, said: “The mother of the child has been very upset since discovering the contents of the bottle. “We will be carrying out a thorough investigation into the circumstances surrounding the death and the circumstances around the bottle. “The bottle in question is believed to be the same bottle used to give the child her first food and drink. “We are now speaking to the shop where the bottle was purchased and are asking anyone who bought it there
