Get the desktop on one monitor, and hide all others from you! === ShowDesktopOneMonitor Crack Free Download takes advantage of the low res display driver. It works on most laptops, desktops, and even servers. If you are on a different monitor (2nd/3rd/4th monitor, etc), it will show you your regular desktop and NOT the desktop on the other monitor. This is the solution to all of those annoying minimize/show desktop buttons on your multiple monitors. Once you have the display where you want it, hold down Win + Shift + D, and the display will now appear "un-minimized" as the other displays will appear "minimized." IMPORTANT: Un-Minimized = the other monitors are now minimized too Once you release the "Minimize/Un-Minimize" buttons, the other monitors will now appear "maximized" as their own desktop is now shown. A simple little program but works great! It doesn't get much better than this, folks. The manual: The program supports a limited number of video cards, and it is being distributed as open-source, so don't expect a new release any time soon. It is meant to work on all laptop and desktop systems, but we can't guarantee that. You can check the online manual or read the help file for more information. Thank You The developer (who has no idea how to use this program) Robert Austin ShowDesktopOneMonitor Product Key is an open-source, very simple utility that allows you to hide/unhide (or minimize/restore) Windows on only a single monitor, or all your monitors at once. This program is inspired by the "Show Desktop" button that is normally placed on the taskbar. The original version was made for the Windows XP and Vista taskbar, where the user was asked to press the hotkey to hide/show the desktop, as it was completely inappropriate to hide Windows on multiple monitors, since the computer could be used with only one of them. The ShowDesktopOneMonitor was created to overcome this limitation and make use of the "Shift" key, as its use is not only considered odd (even though it would make the desktop "behave" as you have it on a single monitor), but also it would save a considerable amount of screen space. The goal is to bring the action of minimizing/hiding all windows from one monitor back

A key-mapping utility that lets you create macros for standard keystrokes, and even toggling caps lock! Why it's great for programmers: This program comes with a built-in macro creator, and a great set of customizable keyboard shortcuts for working with files and your operating system. Why it's great for the casual user: There's a great, easy-to-use interface for creating simple macros, so you don't have to remember any shortcuts. How to install KEYMACRO: This program requires the portable version of KeePass, which can be downloaded from KeePass.org for free. 1. Download the portable version of KeePass from the link above. 2. Open it and start creating your first macro. 3. After you're done, export the macro in XML format using KeePass's Export function. 4. Open a text file and paste the XML content from the KeePass database, or any file you want. 5. Close the application and relaunch it. 6. You should now see the macro in its original form, but with a different name (you might need to right-click on the macro and select "rename" to change its name). How to activate your new, built-in keyboard shortcuts: As noted above, this program also includes a utility for creating keyboard shortcuts. It requires the KeePass portable version for the same reason the KeePass application does, and you can create and modify macro files from within the program as well. 1. Start the program and click on the Tools menu. 2. Select the Macro option. 3. You should now see a list of your available macros. 4. Select the macro that you want to modify. 5. Then click on the small icon to the right of the text, and select "Create" from the menu. 6. A new window should open, allowing you to modify the macro. 7. You can edit the macro any way you like, and it will be updated when you relaunch the program. 8. After you're done modifying the macro, click the "Save to file" button to save your changes. You can now use the built-in KeePass shortcuts to create and modify your macros. The program can be installed on a flash drive as well, and it will automatically launch every time you

And maybe, just maybe, we'll inspire you to think beyond the four walls of your house of pain. Wednesday, April 29, 2009 Tuesday On Tuesday, I had surgery. That's right. Not one of the surgeries I'd been looking forward to, it was the back surgery. My back hurts and I'm willing to bet it's going to hurt for a while. From what I was told at the appointment, I'd be back to work within a week and still at work two weeks later. That's good news. He did note, however, that because the disc is so diseased, they had to do a full discectomy. My MRI looked great and my doctor has been a rock through this whole thing, so I guess that's one step closer to being declared cancer free. On to more painful news, I've got a GI bleed. This is not good. I was able to work through my GI bleeds (and trust me, they can be a lot of work), but this one, I've just been really tired and that's all I have to say about it
