Compatibility AutoCAD Product Key can read, display, and save all DWF, DGN, and DXF formats. AutoCAD can open, modify, and close all other file formats, including large document formats such as AutoCAD Assembly, AutoCAD Plant 3D, and AutoCAD Structural 3D. AutoCAD 2009 introduced the Extensible Markup Language (XML) as the native file format. XML files can be imported, edited, and saved in AutoCAD and exported to other applications. 2016 update AutoCAD 2016 is fully 64-bit compatible with a wide range of PC configurations. Features include: CUI 3D support and UI control Lightweight Installed User Interface (LUI) Volume shadow map rendering UI navigation independent of project navigation In addition, many new features are implemented: Customizable command palette (CMP) Enhanced 2D/3D file importing 2D/3D DWG import Folding Multiple-slice rendering In 2016, Revit 2D and Revit 3D were also released as native 64-bit applications for the first time in the history of Revit. Features of AutoCAD 2016: Solids Surface Mesh Component In addition, the following new features were added: Bring toolbars into the center of the window Grid snap Guides Convert polyline to paths Cut and copy objects Polyline snapping 2016 also marked the introduction of the following new plugins: Brushes Drafting shapes Milling Mappings Crop tool 2016 also marked the introduction of 2D CAD reflow tools. 2017 update In AutoCAD 2017, it was possible to import CAD files in the format of Architectural Design Package (ADP). This allowed for importing CAD files from the CAD products being used by architects and engineers when creating a building or landscape. This also allowed for architects and engineers to use the same CAD design tools for both construction and visualization. This allowed for better documentation. In the previous version, AutoCAD could only import CAD files in the format of Visio Graphics (.VGX), Encapsulated PostScript (EPS), and a proprietary format. The 2017 update also introduced the following new features: CUI dialogs with project context Auto-generation of 2D spline objects from a graph Built-in CAD display with selection 5b5f913d15
