RemoteNet is a tool you can use to help solve problems when trying to fix your own system. RemoteNet lets you use your own system, to access, monitor and control another machine. You can transfer files, install software, change the registry, access desktop settings, send messages, use voice over IP or even configure hidden desktop settings. With RemoteNet, you can even help someone else without them having to be there. This software will make you more productive when you're using your system. Not to mention helping out other users when you can simply do the job for them remotely. This product is a standalone install. ExTREME is an utility that checks for duplicate IP addresses and routes them to the nearest legal data center (defined by the NSA). When you run ExTREME, it quickly generates a list of IP addresses that are illegal (based on the NSA's definitions). Then it identifies the nearest legal data center to each illegal address. As it identifies illegal addresses, it also displays the nearest legal data center so that you can check if a legal address is available. As you sort the data, you will notice that the distances of illegal to legal addresses are reduced. When you see that a particular legal address is available, you can click to instantly route the illegal address to that specific legal data center. VoidR is a program that can be used to view remote desktop session, and log files. It is compatible with Windows versions 2000 and above. It has a nice easy to use GUI interface. RentZilla is a Windows service that enables you to remotely control a computer. This service is similar to Sysinternals Remote Desktop Connection (RDC), but it does not require you to purchase the host application, or to have to manually install anything on the host. RentZilla requires no software to be installed on the client host computer. All you need is to run RentZilla on a client computer and access it remotely via the Internet. A RentZilla client computer can also be called a remote computer. RemoteControl: RentZilla also acts as a remote control of the client host computer and it has a lot of options. You can control any client host that is running Windows, but it doesn't support those hosts that use a different OS. You can control any type of computer, but it does not work for mobile devices, phones and any other mobile devices. It is not just for PCs, but it also supports portable devices such as PDAs, laptops, iPods, iPads and other tablets. Configuration of Remote Control: RentZilla has many configuration options, but the most important are the following: · Configuration – You can configure the settings of the host computer, such as screen resolution, or the frequency of the sounds and other notifications. · Events – You can configure the events and conditions of the host computer, such as moving the mouse, keystrokes and starting software. · Notifications – You can configure the notifications and popups that will appear on the client host. · Session – You can configure the settings of a remote control session such as the host computer name, port number, password or it can be left as a blank. · Connections – You can configure the settings of the connections, such as host computer name, password, retries and the ping time. Main features: · Remote control of any Windows computer. · Supports all types of computers, including laptops, computers, iPods, iPads, tablets, smartphones and other portable devices. · Remote control of any version of Windows. · Remote control any type of computer, even ones running different versions of Windows. · Configure the client's settings such as the screen resolution, sounds and notifications. · Control the client's events such as the frequency of the mouse, keystrokes and other notifications. · Control the client's devices such as mouse and keyboard. · Configure and change the settings of the client's connections such as the name, password, ping time, retries and port number. &middot
