Q: Repeated nested static nested class I would like to create a nested class in a static context. My goal is to create a separate static inner class for each class in an "inner" hierarchy. public static class InnerClass { public static class InnerInnerClass { } } This compiles just fine, but makes it illegal to use the nested inner class in that context (it does not work "static class InnerInnerClass {}"). I know I can write public static class InnerClass { public static class InnerInnerClass { } } But is it possible to do something like this: public static class InnerClass { public static class InnerInnerClass { static {} } } (i.e., of course compile but "work" inside InnerClass) A: No, that's not possible. Both Java and C++ allow static members as nested classes, but they don't allow static nested classes as well. Once Up, Never Down Once Up, Never Down is a live album by Cream, released in May 1975. It was recorded at the St. John's Catholic Church in Montreux, Switzerland on 30 March 1974. As the title suggests, it was recorded live at a concert for the May 3–4 Montreux Jazz Festival. The album was the last of the group's brief line-up, as original frontman Eric Clapton was about to leave. Mick Hucknall replaced him, but was soon replaced himself by another ex-Cream drummer, Jack Bruce. Background Sessions for this album were initially intended to be for the White Cotton album, but it was decided to record a live album instead. Much of the material was taken from Cream's 1974 European tour, although there was some new material included. This was the last studio album from Cream's original lineup to feature Eric Clapton until 1994's Tonight. The album features two different albums: One recorded in the fall of 1973, and the other in the spring of 1974. One track, "Toad" from the early recording was reworked with different lyrics and a faster tempo into the final recording for this album. Although this was an official release, the recordings for this album were not released as a CD until the April 2015 re-release of the White Cotton album

Q: "in rapid succession" in its context In the context of X not having a chance to answer the question, what does in rapid succession mean in this sentence? Who's in the room with you now? It's me, Randy and Janice. In rapid succession, a man and his wife walk in. A: the sense is "who's here?", where the response is said in a succession of words A: I'm assuming the whole sentence is referring to the new couple walking in, as to when the man and his wife walk in "at the same time". It means they walked in quickly, almost simultaneously. For example, the two could have come out of the same door, in which case the person you are talking to says something like "Oh, and in at the same time was... " A: "In rapid succession" is a phrase used to describe how many things happen at the same time. If you have two quick events, you would say "In rapid succession, X and Y" to indicate that both events happen at the same time. Example: We will arrive home at 3 p.m. in rapid succession; you can help Aunt Edna, you can put away your own laundry, and I can wash my hair. Q: SharePoint 2013 Datasheet view (Link Icons) I have a list that I would like to give users the option to filter through using a Link toolbar. I'm able to achieve this with the Built-in "EditLinks" options, but I'd like to include other icons (for example, filtering through the datasheet view, which doesn't have that option) I've read online that I need to get the built in "ViewWithData" and "ViewFilteredBy" views (which is the datasheet view, and a custom view that has a choice of different choices for filters), but I'm not able to find the URLs to either of them, which I'd imagine would be stored in the Web.config of my site, and I'd also assume there'd be some way to set up a datasheet view through Central Admin which wouldn't involve me having to set up a custom view. Ideally I'd like to have something like this: Any help would be much appreciated. A: You can copy the Site Actions (Site Settings | Site
